MAU-3029

MEMORANDUM FOR: Director, FBIS

THROUGH: Chief, Operations Group

SUBJECT: Monthly Report - Austrian Bureau - November 1983

I. OPERATIONS

Deputy Chief [] orchestrated the bureau's contribution to coverage of the 21-22 November West German parliamentary debate on intermediate missiles. Coordinating closely [], the bureau texted four major speeches, totaling around 28,000 words, with a technician tuning into the West German regional radio providing the best signal. This source is not normally the bureau's coverage responsibility, and three of the five monitors assigned to the task are not normally German monitors.

The bureau assumed the BBC's coverage of Kiev English and Ukrainian foreign services on 21 November for a couple of months until BBC's "staffing situation eases." In a reversal of usual roles, the BBC is feeding the two casts live to the bureau via the VC channel.

The bureau fed the TANJUG second service to the BBC during the period 4-17 November in order for the BBC to sample its content. Thus far no survey results have been forthcoming.

II. ADMINISTRATION

Each bureau employee was given a copy of a memorandum by the bureau chief explaining the rationale and implications of the new FBN classification and compensation system that became effective 27 November. The memo tried to interpret the admin speak about "incumbency allocations" and "impact allocations." The bureau chief also briefed the Embassy administrative counselor and personnel chief on the new system; there was no hint of concern or resentment over FBIS's departure from the FSN system.

Three of the bureau's growing ranks of newer employees--nine have been on board for less than two years--were promoted from trainee status: Yugoslav monitor [] Polish monitor [] and technician []
